Day 1: London – Roses

We journey aboard Eurostar from London to Paris and continue by rail to Perpignan where we are transferred to the unspoilt town of Roses on the Costa Brava, our base for the next seven nights.

Day 2: Roses Express

Enjoy a morning at leisure and relax in our hotel, take a stroll around the old town of Roses, or head to the wide, sandy beach. In the afternoon we head towards the citadel on the seafront where we join the Roses Express. This delightful little road train is pulled by an ornate tractor and climbs into the hills of the Cap de Creus national park to give you spectacular views across Roses.

Day 3: The Yellow Train of the Pyrenees

Today we spend the day in France and the French Pyrenees on our included excursion. Our first stop is the medieval walled city of Thuir, which nestles at the foot of the Pyrenees and is surrounded by vineyards. Here we taste some local wine before travelling to Villefranche to join the Yellow Train for an unforgettable journey through the Pyrenees. Sit back and relax as the line winds its way up the Tet valley, through forests and tunnels and across ravines and viaducts, including the Pont Gisclard suspension bridge and the Séjourné viaduct with its dramatic double-decker arches. We alight from the train at the small mountain village of Font Romeu and return to our hotel by coach.

Day 4: Roses

Do as much or as little as you choose with a day at leisure in Roses.

Day 5: Núria Valley Railway of the Pyrenees

Today's journey is in Spain on the Núria Valley Rack Railway, which is twinned with the Jungfrau Rack Railway in Switzerland. It's the only means of transport that accesses the valley, so you are guaranteed breathtaking views of mountains and meadows as we climb more than 1,000 metres, and with the help of a local guide we can learn more about this remote region.

Day 6: The Red Train of the Pyrenees

Enjoy another day in the French Pyrenees in the company of a local guide. This time we join the Train du pays Cathere et du Fenouillèdes (affectionately called the Red Train), which passes through a land of vineyards and castles as it slowly climbs over an impressive 60 kilometres from Rivesalets to Axat. We enjoy some free time in the pretty town of Axat, high in the Aude valley, before returning to our hotel by coach.

Day 7: Figueres & Dalí Museum

This morning our excursion is to the Catalan town of Figueres, named after the sweet fig trees that once thrived here. A mix of architectural styles can be found in the old town along with various cultural attractions, the most popular being the Dalí Museum which we include entry to. This amazing building is dedicated to the town's most famous son, Salvador Dalí, and is highly recommended for anyone visiting northern Spain.

Day 8: Roses – London

We leave the Spanish coast behind and retrace our route to Paris, where we join Eurostar for the return to London.
